stakeholders. "Operations are stable. Our aim is to preserve the company's technological expertise and market position and establish a viable long-term solution," said Mr Roeger. Various potential courses of action will be examined over the coming weeks. All concerned want to develop a sustainable future for the company.

Those in charge jointly informed the 23 employees about the latest developments. Their wages and salaries are guaranteed for a period of three months thanks to specific substitute benefits provided under German insolvency law. The PLUTA team, which also comprises attorneys Ms Jacqueline Tilberis and Ms Wibke Zinke, is in the process of securing pre-financing of these. This will ensure that the salaries are paid as normal.

The company was founded in 1987. The founders brought with them an in-depth understanding of electrotechnical systems with programmable controllers, computer technology and software development. A few years later, the company purchased and moved to its present headquarters in Weiden, where it has office spaces, a production hall and storage facilities. "The situation is not easy. However, our team is highly motivated. We are working with great urgency with the provisional insolvency administrator to put our company on a viable footing," said Mr Robert Kellner, founder and managing director of EASTEC.
