An information event for residents and their relatives also took place yesterday. Representatives of the home supervision and health supervision authorities were present to answer any questions from family members on behalf of the administration.

Press Release

Kaufmann from PLUTA said, "We have given the employees, residents and relatives detailed information about the situation. The business remains fully operational. The complete and continued care of the residents is ensured."

Search for investors to begin

The company has filed for insolvency as significant cost increases have led to a liquidity gap. "We have been able to gain an initial overview of the financial situation over recent days. Our goal is to ensure the retirement home's survival. To this end, we will shortly initiate the process of finding an investor," continued Dr Kaufmann. The PLUTA restructuring team further includes attorney Mr Alexander Bortfeldt (LL.M.) and business management expert Mr Frederic Hupens (M.A.).
